The glass is complete. It includes a bowl, a stem and a foot. The bowl is slightly flared and has a flared rim; its base tapers towards the stem, which is solid. It is composed of a cylindrical segment resting on a knob and then on a half-knob. The foot is circular with a truncated cone profile at the top. The underside shows a trace of glass pontil. There is a glass burr at the junction of stem and foot. It is geometric. The lower third of the bowl is adorned with slightly sloping flutes with a domed top. On the upper part of the stem, these become small vertical ribs, which extend to the foot. The bud and half-bud of the stem are also decorated with these vertical ribs.
