The glass is complete. It includes a bowl, stem and foot. The bowl is flared at the top and has a flared rim. The stem is an extension of the bowl; hollow, it is straight and cylindrical in cross-section, tapering towards the bottom. The foot is circular in shape, with a truncated dome profile at the top and a folded edge. The underside shows a trace of glass pontil; none other than the shape of the object and the transparency of the glass.
