

Bottle

<https://collections.pacmusee.qc.ca/en/objects/bottle-2018-010-0028/>

Collections / Post-war to present day / bottle

CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 license

The bottle is intact. It is cylindrical in cross-section, although the wall is slightly flattened at the top on two opposite sides. In profile, the body is tapered towards the sock, with a rounded shoulder. The short neck is cylindrical, with an annular ring at mid-height, topped by a flat-topped, truncated cone-shaped lip. The base is slightly swollen, with a slight bevel, and rests on a flat base. The bottle has a vertical handle with a curved profile, an oval cross-section and a wide concave groove on the outside. The upper part of the handle is attached to the neck ring, while the lower part is linked to the wall, halfway up the latter. The body is dark reddish-brown; the lower half is shiny in places; the center of the shoulder has a small annular groove.

Accession Number 2018.10.28

Date 1999 an

Materials ceramics, coarse-grained French sandstone from the Bessin-Contentin region

Measurements 31 x 3,7 cm

© Collection Pointe-à-Callière, Paul-Gaston L'Anglais fonds, 2018.010.0028

Photo by RBPHOTO