

Bottle

<https://collections.pacmusee.qc.ca/en/objects/bottle-2018-010-0370/>

Collections / From federalism to the end of the Second World War / bottle

CC BY-NC-ND 4.0 license

The bottle is complete, with only small chips missing from the top of the neck. It is cylindrical in cross-section. In profile, the body is tapered towards the neck, with a rounded shoulder. The neck is long and cylindrical, topped by a straight-lipped, flat-topped neck. The neck also has a swollen ring at some distance from the top. The bottle has a flared base and rests on a flat bottom. The body is beige, with a brown surface in places. Its inner surface is covered with a transparent brown liquid glaze; there are significant glaze runs on an area of the neck, shoulder and outer wall. Turning rings are visible on the outer wall ; none, apart from liquid glaze runs on the outer surface.

---

Accession Number 2018.10.370

Date 1890 c

Materials ceramics, coarse sandstone from the Bray-Beauvaisis-Loire region

Measurements 18,9 x 2,883 cm

---

© Collection Pointe-à-Callière, Paul-Gaston L'Anglais fonds,2018.010.0370

Photo by René Bouchard