The jug is complete. It is circular in shape. The shoulder is rounded, the neck is constricted, the rim has a small domed ring and a swollen lip; it is fitted with a small pouring spout and its top is domed. The wall is swollen and the base flared. It rests on a flat, unglazed base. The handle is vertical. Oval in shape and cross-section, its upper end rests on the rim, while the other is folded down and rests on the wall. There are uneven bulges on the handle ; none other than the green-colored glaze that covers the entire surface of the jug.
