The stein is complete; there is a crack in the wall near the handle. The stein is cylindrical in shape; in cross-section, it is straight with a straight top. The base is swollen. The bottom is flat, with a circular, uneven pontil mark in the center. It has a massive vertical handle with a wide vertical groove on the outside. Its ends are folded downwards; the upper end rests on the wall below the rim, while the other rests on the wall above the base, and has a raised tail ; The decoration is engraved. It features a plant motif. The wall opposite the handle is adorned with a wide, serrated ring, the center of which is decorated with a beaded latticework. It is supported by a long, wavy, leafy stem.
