The plate is complete. It is circular in shape, with an undulating rim. The rim is thick, the marli sloping inwards, while its wall is curved towards the flat bottom. On the reverse, it rests on a ring-shaped foot with a wide, flat, glaze-free base. The center is recessed and flat. The face shows small flaws in the glaze. There are small linear marks on the base ; The decoration is transfer-printed in blue underglaze. The molded decoration covers the rim and the transfer-printed decoration the base. It features a plant motif. On the wing, the motif is divided into twelve panels decorated with basket-weave in relief. The background features a central flower, probably a carnation, surrounded by leafy stems and an insect arranged in a circle. The decoration is blurred.
