port of surprises

by Marc Gratier

around the world, increasingly concentrated in a few major ports. In the case of Montreal, the port is a key element of the city's economic and social life. The port is a source of pride and a symbol of the city's maritime heritage. The port is also a source of economic activity, providing jobs and services to the city and the region. The port is a vital link between the city and the world, and it is a source of many surprises.
